The Cook, the Stomach, and the Soul

There probably never was more discussion about "physical education" than in our day—never, at least, since the times of the Greek gymnasium, when the sages walked and taught in public places of physical training, and often doffed their gowns (Socrates, for example) to share in the classic sports of the Attic youth. Our colleges are providing gymnasia; some of our female feminine, as the French would have us say, academies make physical training and domestic arts, cookery, etc., their ostensible claim to public patronage; and our public journals and lecture-rooms abound in lessons on the subject.

Doubtless, there may be some squeamishness in the popular treatment of the theme. It is a medical doctrine that to be excessively concerned about health is a cause of morbidness, and that the best proof of health is unconsciousness that we have stomachs, lungs, etc. But, indisputably, this happy unconsciousness is a rare blessing among us, if not among all modern peoples. Our modern, transitional civilization has too much friction, and, as a consequence, too much abrasion to allow us perfect health, and the rest and composure which comes of it. There are few of us who are unconscious of some distinctly marked ailment, and, perhaps, most of us who have not specific disease, have, at least, the vague suffering, restlessness, or discomfort, which arises from an abnormal condition of the body, and which is often less tolerable than more distinctly marked maladies. Bishop Simpson, in laying the corner stone of the Vineland (N. J.) Seminary, expressed, in a paragraph, a whole volume of meaning on the subject: "I am satisfied," he said, "that many, perhaps a large proportion of us scarcely live one half our days. We have not studied the laws of health, and are constantly violating them. We suffer our systems to grow old when there is no absolute necessity for it. We fail to comprehend the relations of the circulation of the blood to our well being. We fail oftentimes to have happiness in our families, because we do not understand the effect of impaired nerves, and oftentimes chide when we ought to pity, censure when we ought to encourage and cheer, and mistake the little worryings and restlessnesses which give rise to, possibly, the hasty expression, or unkindliness of feeling; in ourselves, from hour to hour, we have clouds and despondency, that would not be there if we understood ourselves as we ought, and if we understood our friends and families as we should."

There is no philosophic physician who will read this utterance of the Bishop, without esteeming him a greater divine for it. Such ideas are not usually expected from the pulpit, and yet there is hardly any place, not even the professional desk of the physiologist, where they are more relevant. There is, in fact, an unthought of amount of ethics in physiology; and theology itself can hardly be competently understood by the divine who does not understand physiology, especially in its relations to the individual, interior religious life. Some one has said that the creed of a man is usually in his gall-duct. The phrase was designed as a smart sarcasm, but it conveys no little truth. A scientific writer refers, somewhat more generally, the sectarian partialities and separations of our country to differences of physical temperament, founding the latter chiefly in the more or less predominance of the biliary functions. The vigorous, Puritanic Calvinist, according to his theory, is a melancholic, morbidly conscientious thinker, inclined to look at the dark side of things, at justice rather than mercy. The Unitarians, Universalists, etc., are a free and easy sort of thinkers, who look almost exclusively at the benevolence of the divine government. The Methodists are a mixture of the three, being a conglomeration of all the elements of our population. The theory is, of course, but a half statement. The causes of differences of opinion in religion are not chiefly physical; nevertheless, it remains true that religious opinion is, in all persons, more or less modified by physical condition.

The mind is the man doubtless, but the brain is the citadel of the mind, and the stomach, morally as well as physically, underlies the brain. The cook, then, as well as the theologian and the physiologist or physician, has important relations to our happiness and morals—those morals at least mentioned in the citation from the Episcopal address at Vineland; and who will presume to pronounce them "minor morals?" How much of human misery, in the most varied of human relations, springs from the neglect of them! How profoundly must they affect character, especially in its forming process, among children, in families! How often do they rob religious life, and all life, of moral beauty, joy and vigor! The cook, we repeat, is an imposing character, viewed from this stand-point. He takes on a real ethical dignity; he is the practical physiologist. Men have wofully mistaken him, and have paid the penalty of their mistake. They have supposed him to be little more than a tickler of the palates, whereas he has their life and death in his hands, and much more. He dictates a great deal of their theology, and actuates a still greater deal of their daily morals. He often makes life intolerable and death terrible.

We are inclined to think that the health of the stomach, and consequently of the brain, depends not so much upon what a man eats, or when or how he eats it, as upon the manner in which it has been prepared for his eating. The former particulars are, doubtless, important, but this is supremely important. We have more gastric "complains," more dyspepsia, especially in this country, than can be found anywhere else in the world; and we have more abject cookery than any other people, not excepting the Germans. Dyspeptic Americans go in regiments to Europe for relief; they find some in England, especially if they keep to good beef and mutton, but you seldom meet with one there who is cured; he improves, but does not get well. He must go to France to get well. Few things do you hear oftener eulogized in Paris, by such foreign invalids, than the French cookery. It gives them new life, and, if they stay long enough, they are almost certain of a radical cure. Cookery in France is a science—the result of incredibly thorough education, and sustained by high remuneration. There are two coincident, national peculiarities of France, which, we think, must have some mutual relation. The French are the only people who have really national cheerfulness, or gaiety, and also the only one which has national fame in cookery. Now that Buckle is gone, we commend the problem of this coincidence to Professor Draper. Meanwhile, welcome to all French Blots, and our blessing on all "academies," "institutes," etc., which propose to rectify our stomachs as well as our heads and hearts.—The Methodist.

Ancient Mining in Western Europe.

From the American Journal of Mining.

Before the time of the Roman dominion, mining was carried on in many parts of Western Europe, and, although there are little or no traces left of the laws which regulated the industry of the barbarians, we know that the mining jurisprudence of the Romans, like their mining science, was affected by their conquest of those countries where the natives already practiced this art.

The Etruscans and the Sabines, in Italy, were acquainted with the use of copper; and the former made early discovery of iron in the neighboring island of Elba, the specular ores of which are famous to this day. The Salassians, in Lombardy, turned the Po into canals, and established extensive washings for gold. The region of the Taurisci and Novic[illegible] was rich in gold, and at one time the natives invited [illegible] the south to assist them in its exploration [illegible] was an over stocked market, and a fall of one third in the value of gold, [illegible] to maintain the price. [illegible] contained gold, silver, copper and iron [illegible] excellent [illegible] world. The barbarian natives extracted these metals from superficial deposits or outcrops, and the Phœnicians and Carthaginians and afterwards the Romans, extracted them by deep mining. In fact, the art itself was planted in Spain by these foreign nations. The mere use of surface deposits can no more be called mining than the gathering of bunch grass and pine nuts by our Nevada Indians can be called agriculture. Probably the Phœnicians themselves, in their distant operations in Spain and Britain, engaged in other [illegible] commerce than mining, buying the metals of the barbarians. But the Carthaginians, we know, established [illegible] the revenue of which [illegible] a numerous army of mercenaries and to wage long and costly wars with Rome. No doubt these mines were, in some form, the property of the State. The British Islands were the scene of a considerable native industry, comprising gold, silver, iron, copper, lead and tin. Strange to say, the Britons seemed to have lacked or less posed the art of manufacturing copper, though they practiced the more difficult metallurgy of iron. The Phœnicians traded with them secretly for tin, and the Romans, by following the Phœnician ships, finally discovered the mystery of the Cassiterides. But the Britons continued, until their conquest by Cæsar, to work their own mines of lead and tin. The tin of Cornwall was shipped first to the Isle of Wight, and thence to the coast of Gaul, where it was loaded upon horses and transported to Marseilles, a journey of thirty days.

Recapitulation—(Georgia omitted, its Senators not having yet been admitted)—Republicans, 56; Democrats, 10.

Of the fourteen new Senators, ten are now in the halls of Congress. Eleven Senators and five Representatives of the winter session (1860–61) next preceding the war, are now in the Senate. The Senators of Maine, Massachusetts and Iowa are the same as ten years ago. Mr. Sumner is "father of the Senate," by virtue of eighteen years' continuous service. To Mr. Hamlin's thirteen years as Senator should be added four years served as Vice President. Mr. Cameron's service, ante dating all his colleagues, is yet only ten years.

Ernest Jones.

Ernest Jones, whose premature death in England was announced by the Cable recently, was a man of some mark, with a singular history. He was one of the leaders of the great Chartist movement which at one time threatened to become a powerful revolutionary force in England, but which collapsed so suddenly and completely in 1848. Ernest Jones had flung himself into the movement with all the generous impetuosity of youth and a free spirit. He was a man of education and social position. He threw away his place in society for the sake of the cause which he had adopted; and he deliberately renounced a large property, which would otherwise have come to him from his uncle, rather than promise even to abstain from active participation in the Chartist movement. In 1848 he was tried for a seditious speech, and sentenced to two years' imprisonment. The sentence was carried out with unusual and inexcusable harshness. When Mr. Jones came out of prison he found Chartism dead and buried. He was a barrister by profession, and he applied himself quietly to his practice at the bar, only taking part in political movements when they came directly in his way. He retained, however, all the strength of his early convictions, and he always ranked among the most extreme of the Radical body. A large section of the steady-going Liberals were for a while impatient and intolerant of him, and when he presented himself, on one occasion, at a meeting in Manchester (we think), where Mr. Bright was the principal speaker, the vast majority of the audience refused to listen to him. Even Mr. Bright's intervention failed to secure a hearing for Ernest Jones, and the latter was at last literally forced off the platform. Of late years, however, this intolerance lost a good deal of its force and Ernest Jones began to be respected by men to whom his name was once a sound of terror. With the working classes of the northern and midland counties of England he was always popular, and there was great anxiety felt to secure his return as one of the members for Manchester. A year or two ago, he carried on an extraordinary rhetorical controversy, on the subject of Democracy, with Professor Blackie, of Edinburgh—a brilliant, scholarly, fantastic Tory. The champions made successive speeches in a public hall in Edinburgh, and Jones undoubtedly displayed great reading and scholarship as well as eloquence. He was a candidate for the representation of Manchester at the late general elections, but was defeated. It appears, however, that a petition is to be brought, and with every chance of success, against the one Conservative who was returned; and the Liberal party agreed to decide by ballot among themselves as to the candidate they would adopt in the event of the Tory being unseated. The result of the ballot was the adoption of Ernest Jones, in preference to so influential and distinguished a Liberal of the old school as Milner Gibson. Just as the doors of the House of Commons, which he had so often and so vainly striven to enter, seemed actually opening to admit him, Ernest Jones died prematurely, and at the very moment when for the first time, his life-long and honorable ambition appeared to have secured a triumph.

Ernest Jones was a poet of no mean order. He had been educated in Germany, and had published some admirable translations from the poems of Freiligrath and other German singers. Three or four years ago he warmly advocated in England the then unpopular and much misunderstood cause of Schleswig-Holstein. As a popular speaker, he was terse, forcible and [illegible] His early death has probably created a greater sensation in England than that of many a man possessing higher ability and wider influence. [illegible]

A boy was sent from Groton to New London, Conn., one day last summer with a bag of green corn, to sell. He was gone all day, and returned with the bag unopened, while [illegible] the floor saying: "There is your corn; go and sell it yourself. I can't. I've been all over New London with it, and nobody said anything about green corn. I was [illegible] asked me what I had in my bag, and I told them it was none of their business." This reminds one of certain business men, to be found in every community, who do not or will not recognize the benefit of advertising their business.

The Rogers Murder

From the N. Y. Times, Feb. 6.

It is now about twelve years since Dr. Burdell was murdered, yet his murderer has not been discovered. The assassination was carefully nursed into a "mystery." The Coroner of the period at an early stage of what was pompously and facetiously styled the investigation, made up his mind that Mrs. Cunningham did the murder, and from that moment he shaped the inquiry to prove that fact. The evidence to which most weight was given was such as sustained that theory. Some of it was clearly manufactured for the purpose, and was the most eagerly welcomed. Clews were thrown out, from time to time, looking in other directions; these were carefully disregarded. For all the public know, the actual murderer was allowed to take the stand and swear to a tissue of falsehoods, concocted for the purpose of screening himself by fastening the crime on an innocent party. It is generally conceded that the Burdell inquest was the most disgraceful performance ever imposed on our excited public, under the guise of an investigation of a hideous murder.

Is the farce to be repeated in the Rogers murder case? It looks a little like it. The authorities seem to jump at the conclusion that Logan has been cleared from all suspicion by the evidence of the girl, Martha Ellsworth, with whom he passed the night preceding the murder. It is proclaimed that her testimony "established an alibi for him;" she also swore positively that "the clothes he had on were not those worn by the murderer," and "thereby," says the reporter, "his innocence was conceded to be established."

Perhaps he is innocent, but that fact has not been "established" by the testimony of the girl. On the contrary, that very testimony tends, directly and powerfully, to confirm the suspicions of his guilt. The case against him is thus far much stronger than against anybody else, and is strong enough, certainly, to call for the most rigid and thorough investigation.

The murderer wore a light overcoat, in the pocket of which was an envelope directed to James A. Logan, the letter which the envelope had contained being gone. Part of his coat, the sleeve bloody on the inside—the envelope and the murderer's hat are in possession of the authorities. The murder was done a few minutes before 7 o'clock in the morning. The assassin had a companion, taller than himself, who held his coat and called to him, "Jim don't do it." This makes it extremely probable that it was the receiver of the letter, and not the writer or the messenger, who was thus addressed. Now Martha Ellsworth's evidence shows that Jim Logan passed the night with her and left the house about 7 o'clock in the morning,—accompanied by another person taller than himself,—and that he wore a light overcoat and a felt hat,—and that when he returned his right hand was bound up in a cloth, which he accounted for by saying that, in trying to escape the Police, he had hurt his hand on the fence.

All these coincidents, to say the least, are striking. They are more direct in connecting Logan with the deed, than was any item of evidence against Mrs. Cunningham in the Burdell case. They may all be consistent with innocence, but they point very strongly in the direction of his guilt; and at this stage of the case that fact gives them importance. On trial their importance would be diminished, as they certainly would not be conclusive.

But the girl, it is said, "swore positively" that the clothes left by the murderer were not those worn by Logan. Of course she did. She would undoubtedly, if asked, have "swore positively" that Logan did not commit the murder. She was his mistress and not in the least inclined to have him hung. If she had sworn they were his clothes, she would have ended the case and also him. She is not likely to have moral scruples which would compel her to tell the exact truth, with such results, even if it had been a simple matter of fact she was swearing to; about which she could not be mistaken; but it was a matter of opinion on which she might very easily be mistaken. Precisely the same thing is true about his departure from her house. At first she did not know, but thought it was about 7. When she found that the murder was done before 7, she was certain that he did not leave till half past. Is there anything strange or unnatural in all this?

We by no means mean to say that this Logan did the murder, but only to protest against the hasty conclusion, on the strength of such evidence, that he did not. His character, his antecedents, his associations show him capable of it—and the admitted facts of the case direct suspicion toward him. He cannot be cleared of that suspicion by the testimony given by his mistress, unless it is confirmed from other quarters: and for the authorities to jump to the conclusion that he establishes an alibi by her evidence as to time, and his innocence by her testimony as to his clothing, is simply trifling with the case.

Murders have been quite frequent in this city for a good many years past, and are now more frequent than ever. But they do not disgrace it half so much as the utter failure of the Police and other authorities to detect the murderers and bring them to justice. And this is largely due to the bungling, hap-hazard way in which the investigations are pursued. As we have already said, the Burdell case was the most conspicuous and the most culpable instance of this known for a long while. In that case the failure to detect the assassin was mainly due to the pig-headed stupidity and malignant one-sidedness of the Coroner, who fell a ready victim to the arts of the parties interested in convicting innocent persons. But that was by no means the only case of the failure of justice. A man named Corlis was some years ago shot within a hundred feet of Broadway, near the entrance of the Carlton House; and the murderer still remains undetected. One Dr. Leutner was killed in his office, looking directly into Broadway, in the early evening, and no one to this day knows by whom. A dozen such cases have occurred within as many years. The authorities must not be satisfied with a show of zeal in such cases; they must detect the assassins who thus make New York a more dangerous residence than any Western frontier town.

There is a very valuable mine of silica in North Stonington, Connecticut. A joint stock company has been organized, and commence operations in the Spring. The company own 600 acres of land and have a long lease of 200 acres more, with mining privilege. The silica is mostly found at the depth of three feet, but occasionally crops out at the surface. The first met with, after digging a few feet, resembles a ledge of decomposed marble, and is broken out in lumps of from several hundreds' pounds weight to fractions of pounds. Further down the silica becomes finer and finer, until it has the appearance of wheat flour. It has been tested at several of the largest glass and crockery manufactories in the country, and pronounced equal to the best. It makes very handsome porcelain crockery. Six crushing machines will be used by the company in reducing the silica to its proper condition for use. An excavation to the depth of about 2,000 feet has been made on the land, and standing on the surface and looking down the cavity has the appearance of an immense basin of milk.

The Guests of the Heart.

oft falls through the gathering twilight
The rain from the dripping eaves,
And stirs with a tremulous rustle
The dead and the dying leaves;
While afar in the midst of the shadows,
I hear the sweet voices of bells
Come borne on the wind of the Autumn,
That fitfully rises and swells

They call and they answer each other—
They answer and mingle again—
As the deep and the shrill in an anthem
Make harmony still in their strain
As the voices of sentinels mingle
In the mountainous regions of snow,
Till from hill-top to hill-top a chorus
Floats down to the valleys below.

The shadows, the fire-light of even,
The sound of the rain's distant chime,
Come bringing, with rain softly dropping,
Sweet thoughts of a shadowy time
The slumberous sense of seclusion,
From storm and intruders aloof,
We feel when we hear in the midnight
The patter of the rain on the roof

When the spirit goes forth in its yearning,
To take all its wanderers home,
Or, afar in the regions of fancy,
Delight on swift pinions to roam
I quietly sit by the fire-light—
The fire-light so bright and so warm—
For I know that those only who love me
Will seek me through shadow and storm.

But should they be absent this evening,
Should even the household depart—
Deserted I should not be lonely,
There still would be guests in my heart.
The faces of friends that I cherish,
The smile and the glance and the tone,
Will haunt me wherever I wander;
And thus I am never alone.

With those who have left far behind them
The joys and the sorrows of time—
We sung the sweet songs of the angel
In a purer and holier clime!
Then darkly, O evening of Autumn,
Your rain and your shadows may fall;
My loved and my lost ones you bring me—
My heart hold a feast with them all.

STOW FOUNDATION PAVEMENT

SAN FRANCISCO, JANUARY 18, 1869

Hon. Frank McCoppin, Mayor of San Francisco—Dear Sir: You have now been connected with our City Government as Supervisor and Mayor for the past nine years, during which time you must have given a great deal of attention to Street Paving; and I now ask it as a special favor to me, that you give fully in writing, the result of your convictions relative to the several styles of street paving now in use in this city. By so doing you will much oblige

Your obedient servant,
H. F. WILLIAMS,
President Stow Foundation Pavement Co

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 5th, 1869

Henry F. Williams, Esq., President of the S. F. P. Co.—Dear Sir: Your communication of yesterday requesting me to give in writing my opinion relative to the several kinds of street pavement now in use in this city, is before me, and in reply I would say, that at the time I became a municipal officer of this city, in 1860, and for many years thereafter cobble-stone was the only kind of pavement used by the city in its corporate, and by individuals in their individual capacity. About five years ago the Nicolson pavement was introduced here by Mr J. J. Robbins, assignee of the owner of the patent, and was received with much favor by our citizens. Very many portions of our streets are now paved with the Nicolson Pavement, so called—still later—that is to say about two years ago, the "Stow Foundation Pavement" was introduced here by the inventor, and many of our public streets have since been paved with that pavement.

A sufficient length of time has, I think, elapsed, to enable any person who has given the subject any attention to form an intelligent opinion as to the merits of the respective wooden pavements—of course, I leave the cobble-stones out of view entirely—and I have come to the conclusion, that, in many respects, such as adaptability to our wants and in durability, the Stow is the superior pavement. But, were the two pavements equal in every other respect, the facility with which the Stow can be taken up and relaid, whenever it becomes necessary to displace it for the purpose of laying down gas and water pipes, should, in my judgment, entitle it to preference and public favor.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
FRANK McCOPPIN,
Mayor of the City of San Francisco

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system. Look at their pallid, [illegible] ted and disfigured faces and their broken-down [illegible] tions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies, that they are cured and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks

MARRIED MEN,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them, nor delay of an immediate relief

DOCTOR GIBBON, as responsible, and will give to each patient a written certificate binding himself to effect radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain [illegible] Dollars sent in registered letter [illegible] Wells, Fargo & Co.

THE "WILLAMETTE FARMER."—We have received the first number of the Willamette Farmer, agricultural paper, published at Salem, by A. L. Stinson, publisher and proprietor, and John Minto, editor. It is an eight page weekly and presents not only a neat appearance, but is well filled with valuable and interesting matter. We judge from the first number that the farmers and mechanics will want it not only for the information it will contain pertaining especially to their vocations, but for its current, general and local news. We clip the following from its introductory article, as showing the aims of the paper and the manner in which it will be conducted:

"The paper will advocate and labor for all interests that will advance the prosperity of the farmer and mechanic, and will have in view especially the objects set forth in the Constitution of the Society, viz: To encourage the cultivation of the soil, and the agricultural development of the State; to foster every branch of mechanical and household arts calculated to increase the happiness of home life; and to extend and facilitate the various branches of mining and mining interests. To the support of a paper thus devoted to the chief means of advancing the material interests of society, we invite all.

The paper will be neutral as between political parties and will speak of or propose measures only as they affect the interests of the many. Whenever any measure becomes partisan, it will cease to claim a place in the Farmer—neither will anything calculated to wound the feelings of any particular sect or religious denomination find room in its pages. It will be the earnest endeavor of those conducting the paper to make it minister to the happiness of every home which it may enter, and to the prosperity of every well-intentioned member of society."

The following is a resolution adopted by the Board of Managers of the State Agricultural Society at a recent meeting, which will fully explain the relations of the Society with the Farmer:

"Whereas, The Board of Managers of the Oregon State Agricultural Society has contracted with A. L. Stinson for the publication of the Willamette Farmer, a weekly newspaper, at Salem, to be commenced in March next, and to be devoted to the agricultural and other industrial interests of the State, Therefore,

Resolved, That the Board of Managers of the Oregon State Agricultural Society, hereby most heartily recommend that paper to every farmer, mechanic, merchant and professional man in the State and adjoining Territories, and urge that a support may be given the Farmer in subscription and advertisements, that will insure success beyond a doubt."

FUDGE.—The Commercial of last evening says: "This afternoon a light column of blue smoke could be plainly seen, slowly ascending upward from the summit of Mount Hood. It floated for a while in a southern direction, and finally settled around the point and side of this old monarch. This is one of the many premonitions of a volcanic disaster, of which this mountain has from time to time given token. What is to be the consequences arising from these certain indications of a long pent up and smothering fire, that must for ages have raged far down in the heart of this monarch of the Cascades, we can dare to venture; but it appears no delightful task to reconcile the mind to a Western Vesuvius on the verge of Webfoot valley." It is hardly necessary to say that the above is sheer fudge, just about a piece with all the rest of the fudgery talk concerning the ascension of smoke from the Cascade mountain peaks. The "column of blue smoke seen yesterday on Mount Hood was a clear case of aqueous vapor as any that ever hung over the Wallamet river on a frosty morning.

ORO FINO THEATER.—Messrs. Lappeus & Knowles, the [illegible] of Oro Fino Theater, have concluded to reorganize the interior of their building so as to better accommodate the audience; and a number of workmen have been engaged for the last two days in making the desired alterations. A new floor is being laid, or rather a [illegible]on of platforms rising one above the other from the orchestra railing back to the end of the hall. The elevation at the end of the room opposite the stage will be not far from ten feet, and at the head of the stairway about four feet. This will afford every person in the audience a chance to see the stage over the heads of all sitting in front. The [illegible] in the room will be [illegible] and one for which all the [illegible] will heartily thank the proprietors. It is intended, we learn, to have this and all other [illegible] completed before the return of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] so that the place will be ready the [illegible]

[illegible] from the [illegible] of yesterday the following: The [illegible] in the river is still falling, and [illegible] day [illegible] more difficult. ....It was [illegible] that a petition was being [illegible] the President of the United States to [illegible] the Blue Mountain mail robbers.....Mr. A. B. [illegible], County Treasurer, gives us the amount of money now on hand in the County Treasury, [illegible] for the use of the common schools of this county, for the year 1869. The amount remaining in the T[illegible]y from 1866 and 1868 is $258 16. Collected from fines in coin, $6 50; from fines collected in currency, $2 66, equal to $2 10 in coin; apportionment for 1868, $4,500; making a sum total of $4,966 76.

FOUNDATIONS BEGUN.—Mr. Richardson, contracting mason, began yesterday morning to lay the foundations of Capt. Gilman's brick, at the corner of Alder and First. The building is to be of brick, two stories high, and will have a front of forty-six feet on First, with a depth of sixty-five feet along Alder. The lower story will be divided into two store rooms of equal dimensions. The excavations for Mr. Strowbridge's building along side, are nearly completed and the walls will probably be put up at the same time with those of Capt. Gilman's. Mr Strowbridge's building will have a front of twenty-three feet on First and a depth of eighty-five feet. Mr. Richardson is contractor for the masonry and Mr. McDonald, for the wood work.

PRETTY GOOD WORK.—The value of the steam fire engines was very well illustrated yesterday when there was occasion for filling a cistern remote from all others and too high to be filled by the hydrants. The engine belonging to No. 4 was stationed at the cistern, corner of Jeff. and Third streets, from which the forced water through twelve hundred feet of hose to the cistern at the [illegible] of Jefferson and Seventh streets. This latter [illegible] about sixty feet above the one from which [illegible] was taken; and yet the engine forced into it [illegible] of water in sixty minutes with a head [illegible] of steam. We call that pretty [illegible]

[illegible].—For the last week or two, a sort of [illegible] cold has prevailed among the people of this city. The attack begins like a severe ordinary cold, with chilling sensations accompanied or followed by raging fever, lasting in most cases several days and leaving the patient with a cough and very sensitive lungs. Generally, when it starts in with one member of a family, it "goes through" all the rest of them. We have known several instances where every member of a family of half a dozen or more, has been sick at the same time, though the severity of the distemper has seldom called for the services of a physician.

CIRCUIT COURT—UPTON JUDGE.—The following were the proceedings in the Circuit Court yesterday:

State of Oregon vs Jack Williams; indicted for larceny; verdict of jury, guilty as charged in the indictment, with recommendation to the mercy of the Court. Thursday set for pronouncing sentence.

State of Oregon vs John Williams; indicted for larceny; verdict of jury, guilty as charged in the indictment, with recommendation to the mercy of the Court. Thursday set for pronouncing sentence.

State of Oregon vs J. H. Lappeus; jury empanneled.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT—DEADY, JUDGE.—Proceedings of Tuesday, March 2d:

United States vs. steamship Fidelitor; libel for forfeiture; motion by libellant for continuance; to be heard W[illegible]y morning.

United states vs. Clark M. Sturtevant; indictment for [illegible] a letter; defendant arraigned and plea of not guilty.

Adjourned till Wednesday at 10 A. M.

MINING EXCITEMENT.—There is a great deal of talk in this city about going to the White Pine Mines, and we learn that a similar state of things exists up the valley, especially in the various towns. A good many will, doubtless, go from Oregon, in the course of the season. We learn by way of a private letter from that district that every foot of the country known to be mineral [illegible] already has a claimant on it. If that be so, our folks had better stay at home.

SALE OF REAL ESTATE.—Mr. A. B. Richardson sold at auction yesterday, the homestead of Mr. Jacob Marks—lots No. 1 and 2 in block 175, corner Stark and Fifth, with a dwelling house thereon—for $1,800. We hear of another lot, sold by Mr Davidson, which was offered last year for $500 without finding a buyer. Yesterday it sold for $1,000. Real estate is going up among the big figures. People who desire to go up in a real estate balloon should hitch on now.

RUMORED NEWSPAPER CONSOLIDATION.—The Herald and the Commercial of this city, both give currency to a rumor that a consolidation of the McMinnville Courier with the Salem Democratic Press, is about to take place. J. W. Jasper J and Beriah Brown B Won't that be a team? Jasper will run the nigger and Chinaman, thus giving Beriah a chance to devote his entire energies to the resolutions of '98.

VACATION.—Prof. McCann, in consequence of ill health and by medical advice, will suspend his dancing school for a short time, in order to recuperate his strength. He, some time since took a severe and obstinate cold which, together with his labors, he finds too much for him. This is rather hard on Mc, as his classes were never larger or his business prospects more flattering than now.

A CHANGE IN PROSPECT.—The clerk of the weather yesterday hung out signs of a change in the weather, such as clouds, south wind, and a sultry atmosphere. A little rain now, or soon, wouldn't be a bad thing for the farmers and gardeners.

LOOK OUT!—The Commercial says several of the Democratic members of the Legislature will depart this morning for Salem. If that is so, we should not wonder at soon hearing that, "that safe" has been opened unless the Secretary should station over it a double guard.

THEATRICAL.—We learn that Mr J B Robinson, with a portion of the troupe lately with Mr Bates, has gone to Vancouver, to give theatrical entertainments for a few nights.

THE Distribution of books from the Portland Library is discontinued for the present, and the rooms will remain closed until the Library is moved into Mr. Ladd's new building.

CARDINELL'S DANCING SCHOOL.—The First Class is requested to meet at the Hall this evening at 3 o'clock. Full attendance desired.

WE learn that at a late hour last evening the jury in the case of the State vs Lappeus, returned a verdict of guilty of assault, simply.

Amendment of the Bankrupt Act.

An Act to amend an Act entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of Bankruptcy throughout the United States," approved March second, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the proviso [illegible] shall not apply to [illegible] proceedings in bankruptcy commenced prior to the first day of January, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, and the time during which the operation of the provisions of said [illegible] shall be extended until the first day of January, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine. And [illegible] is hereby amended to read as follows: In all proceedings in bankruptcy commenced after the first day of January, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, no discharge shall be granted to a debtor whose assets shall not be equal to fifty per centum of the claims proved against his estate upon which he shall be liable as the principal debtor, unless the assent in writing of a majority in number and value of his creditors to whom he shall have become liable as principal debtor, and who shall have proved their claims, be filed in the case at or before the time of the hearing of the application for discharge.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That said act be further amended as follows: The phrase "presented or defended," in the fourteenth section of said act shall read "prosecuted or defended", the phrase "non resident debtors" in line five, section twenty two, of the act as printed in the Statutes at Large, shall read "non-resident creditors", that the word "or" in the next to the last line of the thirty-ninth section of the act shall read "and"; that the phrase "section thirteen in the forty-second section of said act shall read "section eleven"; and the phrase "or spends any part thereof in gaming" in the forty fourth section of said act shall read "or shall spend any part thereof in gaming", and that the words "with the senior register, or" and the phrase "to be delivered to the register" in the forty seventh section of said act be stricken out.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That registers in bankruptcy shall have power to administer oaths in all cases and in relation to all matters in which oaths may be administered by commissioners of the circuit courts of the United States, and such commissioners may take proof of debts in bankruptcy in all cases, subject to the revision of such proofs by the register and by the court according to the provisions of said act.

Approved, July 27, 1868.

PUGET SOUND

From the Olympia Transcript, Feb. 27.

Last week at Teekalet, Inspector Stratton seized a large lot of champagne.

The bridge ball of Thursday evening passed off in excellent style. The receipts amounted to $196.

The Twenty second was observed in this place by a general display of flags, the ball having been postponed.

The iron ore in the Black Hills, within fifteen miles of Olympia, is of as good a quality as can be desired, in exhaustless quantities, very near to both the Sound and Hood's Canal, and all it wants is capital and enterprise to make all the railroad iron the Northern Pacific company will ever want. Who will open the way to one of the richest deposits of wealth known in the civilized world?

We presume that ere this, Congress has passed a registry law for the Territories, as there have been several intimations of it in the newspapers. We hope so, even if it does bring terror to some of the Democratic strongholds. They are constitutionally opposed to it, of course, cutting off, as it will, if rightly enforced, a large body of voters who are always imported into our borders on every election, besides stopping much other illegal voting.

Olympia is now improving rapidly in proportion to its business and population, and with greater prospects for the summer. The mechanics are very busy, having plenty of work ahead. A number of new buildings will be built this spring, besides much repairing of old ones, and town improvements. Our merchants, traders, butchers, drovers, mechanics and laborers all appear to be doing well. The hotels are full, and there is more transient travel than ever before in the history of the place.

Importations from England.

In a recent speech in favor of protective legislation, delivered in the House of Representatives by Hon W. D. Kelley of Philadelphia, there is the following paragraph:

I hold in my hand a circular which reads thus: "Fifty eight, Old Broadstreet, London, November 30, 1868, from S W Hopkins & Co, exporters of railway iron. Monthly Report of Exports of Rails from Great Britain, extracted from the Government Returns." By this report it appears that in the ten months ending October 31, 1868, Great Britain exported five hundred and nine thousand nine hundred and sixty eight tons of rails. Gentlemen probably think that England's colonial dependencies took most of this iron, that British India, British North America and Australia took it. No, gentlemen, we are her chief commercial dependency. She is our mistress, and we maintain her throne and aristocracy. No; the British dependencies took but eighty four thousand tons, and her American dependency, the United States, took two hundred and twenty eight thousand tons. Of the five hundred and nine thousand nine hundred and sixty eight tons of rails we took twenty one thousand tons more than British India, Russia, British North America, Sweden, Prussia, France, Spain and Canaries, Cuba, Brazil, Chili and Australia.

GOLD IN THE UNITED STATES.—During the Revolution and for some years subsequent the "red, red gold" of the ancient ballad, or Guinea gold, was the style of aureate in vogue in the United States, the hue of the metal being somewhat reddish and the supply coming from the Guinea coast, whereby the word guinea came in use for a coin. From 1804 to 1829 North Carolina furnished all the gold for the Republic, amounting, according to the mint returns, to $100,000. In 1829 South Carolina sent in her first instalment, $3,500, to the mint, and in the next year Virginia and Georgia swelled the tide, the former State sending in $30,000 and the latter $213,000. In 1838 Alabama began to send small quantities, branch mints were established at Charlotte, North Carolina, and Dahlonega, in Georgia, and with this gold establishment, so to speak, we worked along till March, 1848, when gold deposits were discovered in California of such richness that before January, 1850, there was taken out $40,000,000, increased during the following year to $90,000,000. From 1848 to 1865 the total product of California has been estimated in official quarters at $900,000,000. Before such a total it is useless to speak of any other yields, though once we were glad enough to painfully extract a few grains here and there. The California gold has a brassy appearance, and doesn't make up as handsomely into jewelry as the old red gold, now hardly ever to be seen, save in heirlooms.

While the subject of breech-loading arms is occupying the attention of the world, it may be worth stating that every one of the great European powers has adopted its favorite breech loader. England its Snider, Prussia its needle gun, Austria its Wrangel, France its Chassepot, &c. The United States has adopted as the national arm, the Allin breech loader which is being produced at the Springfield United States Armory, by transforming the ordinary Springfield regulation musket into a breech loader. It will do more execution than any other gun known, and combines in itself simplicity and general efficiency. This gun is named after its inventor, Mr Allin, the Master Armorer at Springfield Armory. Every European government has had its agents in Springfield to examine it. This, however, is only one of the several distinct breech-loaders, including the Peabody, Remington, Sharp, Henry, Spencer and others, all muskets of these styles are being ordered by Denmark, Russia, France and Sweden, and a thriving business is also being done supplying the Chinese and Japanese with these patterns. [illegible] in the Eastern States [illegible] to have their particular [illegible] adopted by the different State Governments, which have muzzle-loading muskets on hand to be converted into breech loaders.

In spite of Barton [illegible] numerous con[illegible] he also has his "theory" at Land[illegible] continues his cigar. Bulwer [illegible] a long reed pipe but Greeley doesn't [illegible] nor Raymond nor [illegible] And yet they are all supposed to [illegible] each in his own way.

The Detroit Post says that Horace Greeley is again despondent: news comes from South Carolina that Thurlow Weed is gaining health.

it left the poor white "clay-eaters" of the South in their degradation, dirt, and laziness to await the slow march of the new civilization now working there. A correspondent of the Newburgh Journal, at Savannah, describes the clay-eater and his establishment as he came into the city from his forest home, fifty or eighty miles away.

First you see a long, lean, very looking specimen of humanity, with an [illegible] made out of a kind of bagging material for covering [illegible] as barefooted with an enormous spur upon his bare right heel, the skin upon which resembles the hide of an elephant, riding upon the back of a mule that is the more intelligent-looking animal of the two. His legs hang down over a huge pair of shafts, with the spur occasionally digging into the side of the mule. Behind the two comes an old rickety cart, in which is usually about a bushel of peanuts, which they call gophers, about the same quantity of small red sweet potatoes and a peck of dirty rice. He has been three days coming to market and selling out his entire stock."

ST. THOMAS.—The unprecedented and extraordinary demand for PLANTATION BITTERS is evidently owing to their being prepared with pure St. Croix Rum, Calisaya Bark, etc. Our Druggists all complain that it is almost impossible to keep a supply, and that their orders, owing to the great demand and limited supply, are but tardily executed. Be sure and get the genuine.

CHARTRES COFFEE!
Manufactory Established in June, 1851.
STEAM POWER, Nos 625 AND 627 FRONT ST.
HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities. CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.
The undersigned who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of the merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.

NESDAY MORNING, MARCH 3, 1869.

Chapter on the Chinese Tax Question.

are sorry to be compelled to notice the lities of another article by the anti-Chi- champion, Col Chapman. But as there o errors too absurd to find a lodgment in minds, and as the press affords the most tive means of combatting absurdities of escriptions, we feel obliged to notice pman's last article in response to our though it is humiliating to be forced to attention to such feeble garrulity.

e Supreme Court has decided that except r as their police power extends, the States ot prohibit the introduction of foreign- brought to this country under the author- f Congress. This police power is limi- and must not trench upon the power so- d to Congress to regulate intercourse and merce among the States, or between the ed States and foreign nations. But Chap- asserts that this police power may be ex- ed by the States to exclude "Pagans" the country. Therefore it follows on his ciples that the Constitution ought to read, ngress shall have power to regulate com- ce with foreign Christian nations." But he word "Christian" is not used in that se of the instrument, or indeed anywhere in it, it would seem that Congress has er to regulate commerce with Pagans as as with other nations, and that the States not defeat that power. The doctrine which pman ar arts would deprive Congress of power to regulate commerce with two- rds of the population of the world. With at simplicity he asks:

> at when and where, (let me ask the OREGO- N,) were Chinamen brought to this country er the authority of Congress? Will he an- r that question?

We will answer that question, though most ople will doubtless think it too shallow to uire an answer. In June, 1858, a treaty "peace, amity and commerce" was negoti- d with China by President Buchanan, and ified by a Democratic Senate. Intercourse a principal ingredient of commerce. Under t treaty the Chinese had a right to come, d did come, to this country. Our people nt into China, and the Chinese came here. r Government might shut them out, and r Government might shut our people out; t in that event there could be no commer- l relations between the two countries. It s to break down this barrier of exclusive- ss and open a mutually profitable trade be- en the two countries that the treaty was gotiated and ratified. When our Govern- nt forms a treaty of "peace, amity and mmerce" with any nation, the people of at nation come into our country usually in mbers apportioned to the trade that is [illegible] on. They must have the right to do is or there can be no trade. Commerce nnot be carried on without the agency of e, and a tax, the effect of which is to minish personal intercourse, is necessarily ax upon commerce. The Supreme Court s again and again affirmed these principles. his shows how the Chinese were "brought this country." Buchanan's treaty opened e way. Congress at the same time passed act to establish commercial regulations th that country, and thus the Chinese were ought here under the authority of Con- [illegible] And it was a Democratic President, ate and Congress that did these things. [illegible] further says:

> The California [illegible] from which the OREGO- N quotes is of no binding validity against us. [illegible] would our Courts, or the Supreme Court of e United States, have any regard for it, except it might furnish some argument. It is not so entirely clear upon what ground the decision s made. It [illegible], I take it, that China had a trade and commerce with us, estab- [illegible] commercial policy of the nation. Will they be kind enough to enlighten us on that point?

We did not cite the California decision as having validity against us." We cited [illegible] Chapman had spoken of a prior [illegible] case, complained of its meagreness, [illegible] that a full judicial investigation would have taken the Court to a different nclusion. We therefore showed that in later case the California Supreme urt had made a full investigation d declared that the attempt to impose a ecial tax on the Chinese was unconstitution-

And now, after having introduced the lifornia Court as a witness in his favor, apman turns round and says it is not enti- d to credit. Crooked are the ways of the mocratic politician. He says "it is not en- ly clear upon what ground the decision s made;" when it is as clear as words could ke it that the tax was pronounced uncon- tutional because it was a restriction upon mmercial intercourse. "It assumes," I e it," says our sharp-sighted lawyer and litician, "that China had a trade, inter- rse and commerce with us, established in commercial policy of the nation." Well, l it would seem so, certainly; and we con- tulate Chapman on being able to see it! at trade and intercourse, "established in commercial policy of the nation," is just at we have been talking about. It was es- lished by Buchanan's treaty and the acts a Democratic Congress, as we have just own. And it is this trade and intercourse t California, Oregon, and the other States not prohibit or limit by special taxes on Chinese.

We quote again from Chapman's article:

> The other idea of the OREGONIAN is, that Con- ss made a mistake in admitting us with the ibitory clauses in our Constitution; and that, refore, the Supreme Court of the United States ld declare Oregon's Constitution invalid! A take! No mistake about it. At the time gress passed that act States had rights which e respected. But tell us with what provision the Constitution does the act of Congress en- ing our prohibition clause conflict?

Our prohibition clause conflicts with this e power of Congress to regulate commerce ong the States and with foreign nations. e clause prohibiting negroes from coming Oregon never had any validity. It was a iculous provision, and no attempt was ever de to enforce it. Equally ridiculous and ild was the clause to exclude for- ners not qualified to become citizens; was any attempt ever made to enforce s clause till last year, when the Democracy ame terrified lest the Chinese and other ferior races" would, unless restrained by vy legal disabilities, become their superi-

As for the proposed suffrage amendment ich Chapman talks about, we are free to we would prefer to have in it a clause spe- cally denying the suffrage to Chinese. Of rse the Chinese, not being citizens, could vote under it as it now stands, but in or- to give greater security against any future mpt by any political party to make voters them, we would like to have them spe- ly excepted in the constitutional amend- nt. If the Chinese should ever be natu- zed and allowed to vote, such men as apman and Stout would wholly control m, for they fully understand the art of getting the suffrages of the lowest classes in a political community.

We hope we are done at last with Chapman's Chinese tax bill. We do not claim to have done anything more than to cite some of the principles of the law on the subject, but enough has been presented to completely explode the doctrines by which it has been attempted to support that bill.

Why Don't You

All the Copperhead papers in Oregon are ranting furiously about the "infamous taxes." We suppose these people don't feel as well as they did in 1861 when they were encouraging the South to persist in rebellion and tauntingly declaring that the Abolitionists could never subjugate the chivalry. It was very fine then, but it is very doleful now. These rebels and their sympathizers had a grand dance, but when it comes to paying the piper they don't like it at all. They all threaten resistance and revolution unless the taxes are removed. Says the Eugene Guard, "Our fathers resisted such a law and we ought to crush it." Says the Albany Democrat, "Our fathers rose in arms, principally because the mother country stamped the tea they drank, and yet we, their descendants, submit to a stamp law an hundred fold more annoying and odious." Says the Herald, "It is the same species of tyranny that our revolutionary fathers fought against, and if we possessed a particle of their spirit it would soon shut up shop and go into oblivion." Rough, isn't it? Not at all what you bargained for when you were supporting the rebellion? But why in the name of all the tutelary divinities of the late lamented Southern Confederacy don't you rebel yourselves? Come, try it on, see what will be the fate of the next Democratic rebellion! You seem anxious to make it appear that there is nothing at all in you but cowardly vaporing, which no doubt is a fact. You should remember that,—

Big words do not smite like war clubs,
Boastful breath is not a bowstring,
Taunts are not so sharp as arrows,
Deeds are better things than words are,
Actions mightier than boastings.

Rebel, then, by all means, or stop your cowardly clamor. Of course you won't rebel, but if you should you can rely upon it that some Democrats would swing next time.

Small Notes.

The extent of the ravages of the velocipedomania may be judged from the fact that about one hundred and twenty applications for patents for velocipedes or parts of velocipedes, and one hundred caveats (declarations of intention to apply for patents for them) are now pending before the Patent Office in Washington.

In his remarkable testimony to the House Military Committee, General Schofield gave it as his opinion that brevets ought to be abolished altogether. No doubt the army will cry, "Amen." Brevets were a distinction when they were rare; when they became universal, like "Mr." or "Esq., they made a distinction without a difference.

The great excursion westward over the Union Pacific Railroad (which will probably be in June or July,) will consist of one thousand guests, bestowed in forty-two splendid cars, now being built. Omaha will be the starting point. Sleeping and commissary cars for the trip are in course of construction. It is expected that President Grant and his Cabinet will be among the guests.

Speaking of the proposed reduction of the army, the Philadelphia Press says: Congress has unquestionably gone to work in the right way by taking the opinions of sound and able officers of intelligence, candor and experience. The remedy proposed by nearly all these officers is consolidation—consolidation of all sorts, from companies in the field up to bureaus in Washington; and Secretary Schofield capped the climax by suggesting the consolidation of the War and Navy Departments under one head.

Says the New York Sun: The idea of immediate resumption finds no favor among the people. They look upon it as an object to be kept in view in legislation affecting the currency or the debt, but they have no desire to precipitate it, or to deal with it irrespective of other considerations. They will be glad to have specie payments when they may be practicable; insisting, however, that they shall be deferred until their realization becomes possible "without a violent disturbance of business."

General Sanborn, of Minnesota, is in favor of supplying the Indians with guns, on the ground that their bows and arrows are more deadly in their hands than fire-arms. The effective distance to which an arrow can be thrown is about eighty yards. An expert warrior, drawing three at a time, can discharge them so rapidly that he will have the third arrow in the air before the first reaches its destination. At the Phil. Kearney massacre, eighty-two men and officers were killed in less than one hour, and only two were slain by bullets.

Says the New York Times: "We do not expect that General Grant will govern his official action by the rules or requirements of party discipline; but we have no idea that he will so far depart from party principles or usages as to provoke the distrust and hostility of the Republican party. He may not go so fast, or so far, or accept so promptly as party leaders may require all that they may expect or demand at his hands. But that he will conform to all the leading principles and measures of the Republican party, and consult its sentiments and its interest, in all essential points of opinion and of action we see no reason whatever to doubt. Nor is there the slightest reason to suspect that he will not rely upon that party, rather than the Democratic, in all political matters, for support. As between the two, his past action and his frequent and emphatic declarations leave no room for doubt.

The Herald continues to furnish its readers with historical information. It says that the funding bill of the First Congress (in the year 1790) provided only for the payment of two-thirds of the full amount of the national debt, and that this policy was suggested by Alexander Hamilton, then Secretary of the Treasury. This will be news to every reader and writer of history. That funding bill provided for every dollar of the national debt and every dollar was paid in accordance with its provisions. The foreign debt amounted to $11,710,378; the domestic debt amounted to $12,414,085, and the State debts which the Government assumed amounted to $21,500,000. Total $75,824,463. An attempt was made to "scale it down," as the process was called, that is, to pay the bonds at the rates at which they had been purchased by the holders, but this scheme was resisted by Hamilton, and every dollar, principal and interest, was paid. The Herald will find no precedent here for its present scheme of repudiation. The precedent is most decidedly against it. Who can guess what that paper's next historical venture will be?

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN

DATES TO MARCH 2.

Congressional

WASHINGTON, March 2.—In the Senate the bill for the removal of political disabilities was taken up. A motion to strike out the name of Asa Rogers, Auditor of Virginia, was discussed till the expiration of the morning hour when the motion was withdrawn [illegible]

A resolution was adopted calling upon the President for [illegible] between the Department of State and the United States Minister at [illegible] Madrid during the last [illegible] years.

The Senate then resumed the consideration of the army appropriation bill now pending. The amendment of Mr Sprague declaring the public lands within the jurisdiction of United States Indian reservations the sole property of the United States and the occupants thereof subject to their laws was withdrawn on the suggestion of Mr [illegible], as the object sought could be obtained in another way.

The amendment providing that all the officers retiring on account of disabilities be retired on the same terms as regulars, was adopted.

The clause striking out the clause limiting the number of Brigadiers to eight, was lost by 18 to 21.

The amendment to instruct instead of authorizing the President to reduce the army, was lost. The bill having been considered as in Committee of the Whole, was reported to the Senate.

Mr Sumner's renewed amendment to provide for the payment of a claim to Massachusetts for interest on advances to the United States in the war of 1812, was discussed till a recess, and without a vote.

Senate. The evening was occupied in the discussion of Sumner's amendment, and then adjourned.

House. Mr Judd's joint resolution requiring the Pacific Railroad and its branches to give bonds, guaranteeing the proper completion of the roads before receiving aid, was considered.

On motion of Mr Schenck, the 16th and 17th joint rules were suspended, and it was ordered that the House meet hereafter at 10 A. M. The motion that the House proceed to the business on the Speaker's table at 10 o'clock to-morrow, was lost.

Mr Butler moved to suspend rules and discharge the Committee of the Whole from the further consideration of the Senate amendments to the Indian appropriation bill, and to concur in the amendment relating to new Indian treaties and ask a conference committee, which was lost.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the miscellaneous appropriation bill.

Mr. Spaulding urged its prompt passage.

Mr Brooks called attention to the great expense of printing money.

The item of the bill appropriating half a million dollars for the construction of four Revenue cutters for Alaska and the Columbia river, Oregon, Mobile and Charleston and the transfer of the cutter S. P. Chase from the Great Lakes to Boston, elicited a long discussion, its opponents contending that instead of building new vessels there should be a transfer of vessels now in the navy to the Treasury Department. The item remained.

The appropriation for the preliminary survey of the site of the League Island Navy Yard was increased to $5,000.

The items for the Freedmen's bureau, amounting to $211,000 were struck out.

An amendment was adopted to pay Minnie Ream the $5,000 due her for the contract to furnish a statue of the late President Lincoln.

At the evening session, Mr. Perham reported a bill relating to the pension law, providing that no claim for pension pay or bounty be allowed a widow who, previous to the death of her husband, has voluntarily lived separate from him without receiving his support. All pensions granted in consequence of death from wounds or sickness contracted in the service, to commence from the date or with the discharge, with the provision that nothing in this act shall deprive any person who was in the service between the 3d of May, 1865 and June 1866, of his pension during that time.

Mr. Schenck renewed his motion for a suspension of the rules and that the House non concur in the Senate amendments to the bill to strengthen the public credit, and ask a Committee of Conference. Objected to.

The House went into Committee of the Whole.

In the evening, the amendment paying the several contestants $2,500, caused a discussion.

Schenck denounced the system as a nuisance, but finally agreed that an amendment be offered. The House agreed after the Committee reported the bill.

Intelligence has been received at the Treasury Department that the wine case, which has been on trial in the United States District Court at New Orleans for a month, resulted in a judgment for the Government against the wine importers on all points. The amount dependent on the issue of the case is $500,000, and it settles important questions of law. The Court over ruled the opinion of the Treasury Department that false cheap wines, invoiced and labelled to represent high grades, are not imitation.

It is said that Grant will resign the generalship of the army.

In a reply to a committee of Republican representatives of the Southern States, General Grant said there will be a change in the military condition of the South. In reply to a question whether Sheridan will be sent to New Orleans, he said not now, owing to the condition of Indian affairs. He had ordered him to remain, and to pursue the Indians.

It is said that McPherson, Clerk of the House, will hold the Georgia and Louisiana credentials incorrect.

In the Third and Fourth Districts of South Carolina there are two conflicting credentials signed by State officers.

After the election of a Speaker on Wednesday, Colfax will resign, delivering a valedictory.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7, 1869.

THE ALASKA FUR TRADE.

In the Senate yesterday, Senator Corbett, from the Committee on Commerce, reported a substitute for the bill introduced by Senator Cole on the 5th of January, to prevent the extermination of fur bearing animals in Alaska. The substitute authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to lease, separately, for the term of fifteen years, the right to take fur seal on the islands of St. Paul and St. George, limits the number of seals that may be killed on the island of St. Paul to 75,000 per annum, and St George to 25,000; and provides that seals shall not be killed except during the months of June, July, September and October of each year. A tax of one dollar, in addition to the rental above provided for, is imposed on each fur seal skin shipped from the islands.

THE DESTITUTE POOR OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Some time ago the Senate passed a bill appropriating $30,000 for the relief of the destitute poor of the District of Columbia. Last Monday the bill was taken up in the House, out of its regular order, and passed, a motion to lay it on the table having been voted down, 104 to 29.

AMERICAN AND ASIATIC TELEGRAPH.

On Monday a bill was reported in the Senate from the Committee on Commerce to authorize the American and Asiatic Telegraph Company to construct a line of submarine cable from Cape San Juan, Washington Territory, via Alaska to Asia. The bill authorizes the Secretary of the Navy to detail one or more steam vessels to assist in making soundings, transporting materials, and laying cable, and requires that the work shall be begun within one year from the passage of the act, and be completed within three years.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

Yesterday Judge Williams made an able argument in favor of his amendment to the Constitutional amendment, which is in these words:—"Congress shall have power to abolish or modify any restrictions upon the right to vote or hold office, prescribed by the Constitution or laws of any State." He advocated his amendment because it could be applied to all races, classes and conditions, as might be thought necessary at any given time. And it had the great merit of allowing each State still to regulate the right to vote and hold office for itself, subject to the interference of Congress in case of unjust legislation on the subject by States. Sumner spoke against the Constitutional amendment, taking the ground that it is unnecessary and that Congress now has power under the Constitution to regulate suffrage in all the States, and advocating the passage of such a bill.

THE "WEST SIDE" REMONSTRANCE.

Last Thursday night a "remonstrance against extending the time for filing assent to the act granting lands to the Oregon Central Railroad Company," was laid on the desk of each Senator. This remonstrance set forth in a brief and concise manner, the claims of the "West side" Company, and no doubt had a strong influence in preventing the passage of the bill for the extension of the time. The remonstrance was signed by S. G. Reed, Esq., of Portland.

STATE ITEMS.

The Roseburg paper says: It is said that seventeen members have been added to the M. E. Church in Mount Scott precinct, in this county, within a few weeks past.

The Willamette Farmer learns that Thomas Cross, who has not succeeded in getting all the beef he would like to have had for packing this winter, expects to get beef from east of the Cascades next season.

From the Roseburg paper: The meeting held last Wednesday for the purpose of considering the subject of a County Agricultural Society was well attended, and a commendable degree of interest in the enterprise was manifested. The officers and managers chosen are men whose energy is a guarantee of the success of any enterprise in which they embark.

A letter from Eugene City (Feb. 22) to the Roseburg Ensign says: We met the surveyors a few miles south of the Pass Creek Canyon. They are making a thorough, fine survey, securing the right of way through farms, etc. In many places we noticed where they have chopped down large trees that had happened to be in their direct line. One of the party said to us, that within three years from this time the citizens of Douglas county will hear the iron horse snorting through *their valleys, and this, too, is conceded by know*ing men of this part.

From the Willamette Farmer: We had a look through the packing establishment of Mr. Thomas Cross, of this city, the other day, and learned from him that he has not been able to supply all the demands made upon him for meats. He has, at this time, about 120,000 lbs. in the smokehouse, nearly ready for taking down. He has made up some 1,000 feet of lumber into packing boxes, used 110 tons of salt, killed 5,000 head of hogs, averaging 185 pounds each; slaughtered 600 beeves, and in so doing, disbursed $30,000 since the 1st of October last.

There is a Russian student at Cornell University. He is a great admirer of Benjamin Franklin, and is very anxious to become thoroughly "Americanized." When he first arrived his stove puzzled him considerably, but he is now master of it. Noticing that boots were placed at the doors of certain rooms at night the Professor says he concluded that it was proper to place his own in a similar position. His astonishment was great in the morning to find that instead of being neatly polished they had been filled with water.

Josh Billings has joined the Woman's Rights movement. He says: "Yu kant git a rooster to pay enny attenshun to a young chicken, they spend their time in crowing, strutting, and occasionally find a worm, which they make a remarkable fuss over, calling up their wives from a distance apparently tew treat them, but just as the hens git there, the cuss bends over and gobbles up the morsel."

ENTERPRISE TRIUMPHANT.—The OREGON DISPENSARY is establishing a reputation second to no house on the coast as a first class and Cheap Drug Store.

Our success has been so flattering that we have sent for another Apothecary. We have also secured the valuable services of Dr J. A. CHAPMAN as Consulting Surgeon and Physician, thus giving evidence of our desire to afford the best of everything to our patrons for their liberal patronage.

OPPOSITION LINE OF STEAMERS. A private letter from San Francisco says that a strong and well regulated Steamship company was formed in that city for the purpose of running a line of steamers regularly between San Francisco and Portland. The steamers are known to be suitable for the Oregon trade and are noted for good speed and splendid passenger accommodation. The people of Oregon will have an opportunity of showing whether they are willing to patronize good and staunch steamers, at a reasonable price for freight and passage, as it will depend on the patronage those steamers will receive whether they will remain in our waters or not.

While you think of opposition, remember that KOHN & FISHEL, No. 91 Front street, have the finest stock of Clothing and Dry Goods, and sell at very low prices.

WALTHAM WATCHES.

The extensive use of these watches for the last fifteen years by Railway Conductors, Engineers and Expressmen, the most exacting of watch wearers, has thoroughly demonstrated the strength, steadiness, durability and accuracy of the Waltham Watch. To satisfy that class in all these respects, is to decide the question as to the real value of these timekeepers.

The superior organization and great extent of the Company's Works at Waltham, enable them to produce watches, COMBINING THE BEST AND LATEST IMPROVEMENTS, and at a price which renders competition futile, and those who buy any other watch, merely pay from 25 to 50 per cent. more for their watches than is necessary.

For sale by all dealers.

No watches retailed by the Company.
